CONTENT

Castilla la Mancha is one of the autonomous communities closest to Madrid, the capital of Spain, making it easy and quick to get there. Spain has a decentralised character for the organisation of competences, with the organisation of education and employment depending on the autonomous communities. The cities of Toledo and Cuenca (which belong to two different provinces) are also World Heritage Cities, which means that they will also benefit from a cultural point of view. The extension of its territory is manifested in very different directions, not only in its landscapes. It makes it an extremely interesting proposal for its variety, with resources and programmes of different types, which are of interest for the development of professional orientation.
